Logging on and submitting a Faculty Survey

To cast your vote go here: http://students.vet.cornell.edu/logon/facultysurvey.asp

If you are using a computer outside the college or your college computer does not automatically log on to the college domain on startup (most do) you will see a pop-up window (see examples below) asking for your “vet_college” logon. This is to log on the internal vet college network, so if you are on-campus you will only see this if your computer doesn’t automatically log on to this domain on startup. This is the same password you use for ClassLists or the College Internal Home Page. If this window keeps popping up, you will need to call VMIT (3-3606) to determine your correct User name and have your “Vet College Domain Password” reset.

This is what it will look like on a PC:

On a Mac it will look something like this:

Once you are logged on to the vet college network, you will need to log onto the Evaluation. This is the standard Cornell Logon and looks like this. It uses the same password you enter for email.

If you are still unable to access your ballots, please contact VMIT (3-3606) or Julie Powell <jp266@cornell.edu>.
